2. One day Faculty Development programme- Walking With teenagers: One day staff training programme on the topic walking with teenagers was organised on 18th March 2020. Mr. Oliver N Sutari was the resource Resource person. The members of teaching and administrative staff participated in the programme. He said that the important thing to remember is keeping them engaged, and connected. Since teenagers are in the life-stage of trying to find their place in life, let them have the say on where the family goes on their walks. It may not be ideal to you, but if keeping them interested in that bonding time is important sometimes we, as adults have to hand over the reins once-in-a-while. Bring them on a nature walk or play some sort of guessing game. A great game to play. This game requires you choose an object, might be a car, bird plane, or any object. Next clues must be asked to guess the object, clues such as color, size, shape, etc. The harder the object to guess and the longer into your walk you will be.

Resource person. The members of teaching and administrative staff participated in the programme. He said Therapeutic role-playing is a technique that allows a person with a phobia to practice new behaviors.

In a role-playing session, the therapist takes the identity of someone that the person is afraid to confront, such as a parent or employer. Before implementing this technique, it is helpful for professional counselors to understand the three phases found within role plays. The first element is called the encounter, which in this situation means being able to understand the perspective of another person. The second element, the stage, is space with simple props that can provide a realistic experience. The third aspect, is another term that professional counselors must know; it is a speech in which the client expresses her private thoughts and associated feelings. The last element, doubling, leads to increased awareness on the part of the client and occurs when the professional counselor or another group member stands behind the client while the client is acting out the scene.

4. International Yoga Day: Yoga is an ancient art of India that refreshes the mind and soothes the soul. The idea of International Yoga Day was first proposed by Prime Minister Narendra Modi on September 27, 2014, during his speech at the UN General Assembly, where a resolution to establish June 21 as International Yoga Day was introduced. The date of June 21 was chosen as it is the Summer Solstice, the day where there is the most sun out of every other day of the year. When millions of people around the world are all set to take out their yoga mats and start exercising, the staff and students of Milagres college were also joined. As per the order of the Department of Collegiate Education Government of Karnataka, IQAC has organised international yoga day on 21st June 2021. 337 students and staff have participated in the programme
